CHE KAISER'S RECEPTION IN HOLLAND-THE ROYAL PLATE AT WINDSOR-URGING THE CZAR TO VISIT PARIS-THE QUEEN

> COMPLIMENTS MR. BALFOUR-THE LATE W. H. GLADSTONE. IBY CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.

Copyright: 1891; By The Tribune Association. London, July 6.-The programme of the visit of the Serman Emperor and Empress has been altered sev-iral times, and has been considerably reduced from the original sketch, as His Majesty fancied that a great deal too much was being arranged for him, and did not care to have every hour laid out so far in advance. LITTLE QUEEN WILBELMINA AND THE KAISER.

The visit of the German Emperor and Empress to Amsterdam, which began coldly enough, ended in some thing very much like enthusiasm. The Emperor was much delighted by the compliment paid by the Koningianetje-"Little Queen," as her affectionate subjects always call her-ordering German, instead of French, to be the court language during the Emperor's stay; and he invariably donned the military order of Wilhelm, the conferring of which is generally inpposed to have given the late King of his worst fits of anger. The Dutch bands played German hymns till they were tired. At the state banquet Queen Wilhelmina sat between the Emperor and the Empress, and at all the outdoor functions the youthful sovereign appeared in a simple black cashmere gown, with a huge white hat of the shape and dimensions in vogue just thirty years ago. The vivacity of William 11 proved too much for the The proverbial frigidity of the Dutch diplomatists.

THE MAGNIFICENT ROYAL PLATE AT WINDSOR. It is probable that at the state banquet which the Queen is to give to-night at Windsor Castle there will be plate in the room to the value of about £500,000. There are two state dinner services. The one of gold will dine 130 persons; the other is of silver. Both were formed by George IV, who regarded them as his own property; but William IV made them over to The great silver winecooler which was made by Rundell & Bridge for George IV, and weighs 7,000 owners, will be in the room to-night. It is enclosed in plate glass. The silver is superbly chased and ornamented. The Royal plate at Windsor is alto-gether worth about £1,800,000. There are quaint pieces taken from the Spanish Armada; a peacock of precious stones from India, valued at £40,000; a tiger's head, also from India, which has a solid ingot of gold for a tongue and crystal teeth; and a wonder-ful collection of splendidly ornamented gold shields, one, made for George IV out of his snuffboxes, being worth £10,000. There are 400 plates that cost twenty-

IMPERIAL DISREGARD OF SCHEDULE TIME. The directors of the South-Western Railway have had their first experience of how the Emperor travels. On arriving at Waterloo the Emperor asked for a cup of coffee, which was provided, and he was told that there would be a halt of ten minutes for him to drink it. He coolly replied that ten minutes was not enough. and kept the special waiting a half-hour, disarranging all the arrangements made for the special train, and much disconcerting the directors, who are accustomed to undeviating punctuality in our Royal family. THE LIFE AT WINDSOR CASTLE NOT GAY.

The delightfully naif allusion of Emperor William to his grandmamma, in his reply to the Windsor Corpora tion, reminds me of a story current some years ago, when the young prince, still quite a led, spent a week or two with the Queen at Windsor Castle. friend, one of his uncles I believe, took him on a trip to town, and the boy's gratifude was immense. It was not at all gay, he said, at Grandmamma's. PLANS OF THE GERMAN EMPEROR AND EMPRISS.

German Empress is not going to the Isle of Wight next Monday, after all, as it is now thought that the more bracing air of Felixstowe will suit her better. So she is to reside there privately with ber children until after the Cowes regatta. Emperor meantime is to cruise in his yacht until the end of the month. He will go down the Channel on leaving Portsmouth; then, probably, to the wescoast of Scotland-not in the Meteor, as has been stated, but in the Holenzollern. The Emperor Intends to visit the Firth of Forth before he returns to Germany, in order to make a careful inspection of the URGING THE CZAR TO VISIT PARIS - Every influence that France can command has been brought to bear on the Emperor of Russia to induce him to honor Parts with an Imperial visit in the autumn. It is believed that the Empress and the Czarewitch will go, and the Emperor will announce his intention to Admiral Gervals during the receptions given in honor of the French fleet.

THE DUKE D'AUMALE'S ENGLISH HOUSE. The Duke D'Aumale has succeeded in disposing of chased five years ago, and which has been in market since His Royal Highness was permitted to return to France. The house has been sold to John Gretton, the leading partner in the firm of Bass & Co.

MR. BALFOUR COMPLIMENTED BY THE QUEEN. Mr. Balfour had an exceedingly graceful welcome at Windsor on Saturday. There is no person in the country to whom the pacification of Ireland has given more gratification than the Queen. In common with others, during the early part of Mr. Balfour's government, she feared that the problem of Irish disorder would prove too much for him; and his complete success, therefore, has been all the more gratifying. It is no secret that Her Majesty complimented the Chief Secretary on the success of his administration. MR. GLADSTONE'S DEAD SON.

The late W. H. Gladstone took little interest in polltics, and it was rather family influence than personal ambition that sent him into the House of Con He had no love for the rough controversies of political life, and all his tastes lay in an artistic direction. was a highly cultivated musician, and, if he had cared He devoted much aftention to sacred music, and com posed a number of hymn-tunes. Every week hymn posed by the son of the Liberal leader. Personally, he was a man of generous, kindly, winning disposition nothing angered him except an attack on his father's character. Dr. Horsley, who performed the operation, was never sanguine as to the result; but the actual cause of death was failure of the heart. The tumor from which Mr. Gladstone suffered was found to be too deep-scated to remove; and even if its removal had been possible, the patient was debilitated by a former illness. He leaves a son and daughter; and the long minority of the son will help in great measure to relieve the charges and debt on Hawarden, to which he

Among the new exhibits in the King's Library in the British Museum are several specimens of early printing of the utmost interest; but Case No. 9 con tains examples of American and Australian printing It seems that in British North America the first printing press was set up by Stephen Daye, of Cambridge, Mass. in 1639, and the first book issued was a metrical version of the Psalms, called "The Pay Psalm Book," and later on known as "The New-England Psalm Book," printed in 1640. The earliest Anglo American publication now exhibited is the first edition of Eliot's Indian Bible, Cambridge, 1661-'63, which was also the first Bible printed in America.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AND THE DUCHESSES. Some serious-minded members of the House of Commons are beginning to complain of the numberless to and afternoon parties which are taking place daily on the terrace. The whole place is, they aver, abandoned to women, and the House is in consequence, becoming a place of rendezvous, which distorts and alters its whole character. The party given on Friday by Colonel Saunderson Burdett-Courts to the Duchess of Teck, is the last straw, and the sight of Joseph emberlain pouring out tea and giving strawberries to three or four Duchesses has been more than the republican simplicity of his former followers could bear, and their forbearance has entirely disappeared. The question is to be brought formally before the kitchen committee, on whose decision the upholding of the dignity and seriousness of the House will depend.

THE PRINCE MAY NOT CHOOSE HIS BRIDE. Some absurd mistakes have been made about the identity of Mile. Vacaresco, whom Prince Ferdinand of Hohenzollern, the King of Rumania's nephew and beir. is anxious to marry coute que coute. Mile. Heleno Vacaresco is a daughter of the Rumanian Minister to Rome, and has been for three or four years the Queen of Rumania's amarmensis, maid of honor, literary as sistant and inseparable companion. She is a lively branette of five-and-twenty, with a strongly developed taste for poetry and romance. She has translated many of the Queen's productions, and her chansons d'amour were solemnly crowned by the French Im-mortals. Although she belongs to an old Boyard fam-115, the idea of such a marriage is extremely distaste-ful to the Rumanians, and the heads of both the parties plainly told the King that it portends the downfall of the dynasty. Meanwhile Prince Ferdinand has been dispatched, with his brother, Prince Leopold, to Vlenna Mile. Vacaresco has been sent away to Rome, and "Carmen Sylva," who promoted the romantic match in consequence of a dream it is reported, is seriously

NATIONAL INSURANCE AGAINST OLD AGE National insurance against old age is a subject much in the air just now. Mr. Chamberlain's successful in terest in the subject I have more than once alluded to, and need add nothing more except to chronicle the fact that his efforts still have every prospect of leading to practical results. Quite apart from this, however, it is stated, apparently on good authority, that the Gov eroment contemplates a measure in this direction next ession. The rumor has been given forth with so much circumstance that I am inclined to doubt its complete accuracy at present. From all I hear, however, I fancy such a step quite possible. This being the case. I would humbly suggest that to begin with insurance against old age is to take the stick by the wrong end It is the most complicated and difficult of all kinds of insurance. All the leading Continental States have some national system of protection for workingme against either accident or illness, or both; but even Germany, the most advanced of all, has not yet at tempted to deal with the old-age problem, though purpose, with a view to legislation in the near future EDMUND YATES.

MacAuley, at one time pastor of the South Reformed Church, at Flith-ave. and Twenty-first-st., dies at his home, No. 378 Washingtonave., Newark, on Saturday from the effects of a para-lytic stroke. He was born in Schneciady in 1813. The Emperor and the Princess of Wales were followed 1834, and from the Princeton Theological Seminary in 1837. The chair of mathematics in the University of Pennsylvania was at once offered to him, but he had received a call to the Murray Street Church in this city, and accepted the latter. This is the church of ganization which in 1632 built the first structure for This is the church or public worship ever erected in New-York. MacAuley was one of the well-known preachers of the city for twenty-five years, during which time a new church was built at Fifth-ave, and Twenty-first-st., and the congregation removed thither in 1849, where Dr. MacAuley officiated until 1862. At the close of his long pastorate Dr. MacAuley lived abroad for seven years, and on his return settled quietly in Belleville N. J. In 1872 he found a little congregation worship ping in a schoolhouse in Woodside, just south of him and, accepting an invitation to presach for them. he finally became their pustor and built up a flourishing church.

WARNER MILLER HOME AGAIN.

HE TALKS ENTHUSIASTICALLY OF THE NICA RAGUA CANAL.

Warner Miller, president of the Nicaragua Canal Company, returned yesterday from a trip to California. When seen by a Tribune reporter last evening, the Senator was going through the mail which he had not touched for a month. He said:
"I don't know anything about State politics excepthat which I have learned to-day, and that is very little. I am interested in the canal, and have been on the Pacific Coast to pay the visit I promised who I left Nicaragua last May. I was invited there by the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco. several speeches, and learned that the people on the coast were enthusiastically in favor of the canal, which will cut off 10,000 miles in water transportation from New-York to San Francisco. It needed no argument to convince them of the advantages to be derived by building the caual.

"Several hundred thousand dollars were subscribed before I left there. Of course, it is not to be expectthat the people of the Pacific Coast can give any considerable portion of the money necessary, because the population is but a little over two inlinois, but they have shown a hearty disposition to help.

"There is an improved political feeling in the Republican party in the West, notwithstanding the reverses of last year. I believe there is a good chance of success in the future. The crops in the West are better than I have ever seen anywhere in my travels. Of course, there will be better prices, and therefore the agricultural classes will find this year much more remuneration than the last."

MR. BLAINE'S IMPROVED HEALTH.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 6 .- Secretary Blaine went riding twice to-day, and he was out a considerable distance upon the country roads this afternoon. morning he was riding about the streets of the village. often stopping, getting out of his carriage and enter ing shops. Emmons Blaine, who arrived Saturday says his father has improved wonderfully since he saw him about ten days ago. No one who sees him dally riding about ten days ago. So dee who sees him daily riding about the village can fail to see a marked in provement in the condition. Mr. Binine's physician, Dr. J. Madison Taylor, of Philadelphia, says that he found his patient better to-day than he has before seen him; that his improvement is so uniform. that his improvement is as uniform and raph-uld be expected, and the conditions are favorable ultimate recovery. He eats abundantly of every and takes exercise in all kinds of weather.

Cape May, N. J., July 6.—President Harrison this afternoon emphatically denied that Secretary Blaine had resigned, a rumor to that effect having reached here to-day.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

THE SPLENDID SPECTACLE IN ST. GEORGE'S CHAPEL, WINDSOR CASTLE.

PRINCESS LOUISE OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN MAR-RIED TO PRINCE ARIBERT OF ANHALT-QUEEN VICTORIA AND THE AMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF GERMANY AMONG THOSE PRESENT-THE BRIDE'S TROUSSEAU.

London, July 6 .- Shortly after 4 o'clock this after oon, amid a scene of splendor and with imposing cremonies, the Princess Louise, second daughter of Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and granddaughter of the Queen of England, was married to Prince Aribert of Anhalt in the historic St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle.

Crowds of people from London and all nacts of the ountry began to flock into Windsor early this morning. in view of the probable crush, a force of about 1,500 policemen was sent from this city to Windsor, and, in addition, the entire local constabulary force of Windsor and its neighborhood was on duty. The bells of the old parish church were ringing nearly all the morning. Windsor was in festal dress and business was entirely suspended after 1 g'clock. As the morning wore on there were some heavy showers, but the rain only served to lay the dust and to freshen the follage. lowers and grass, and did not dampen the ardor of the thousands who had througed into Windsor.

Not since the marriage of the inte Duke of Albany ias the castle sheltered so many distinguished people nd not since that occasion has the chapel been so crowded with members of royal families. The dec-erations of this chapel royal were splendid in the ex-The stalls of the Knights of the Garter were set uside for some of the most important guests, and the Bray and Rutland chapels were fitted up as retiring-

The route followed by the procession was the same s that taken at the wedding of the Duke of Albany. This route, down Castle Hill, was lined on both sides posed of Life Guards and Scots Guards, were mounted at every available point. The royal standard of Great critain, from the highest tower of the Castle, floated wer the whole, while everywhere were dazzling uni diplomats, state-smen, generals, admirals, princes of minor degree and high church dignitaries. Down astle Hill the Eton boys on the sward on the left, beering wildly, ran with the carriage of the royal from Henry the VIIIth's gateway.

The first part of the procession was formed by the arriages containing the bridegroom's family. The secand section consisted of twelve state carriages, which conveyed to the chapel the Emperor and Empress of ermany and the Imperial party, with the Prince and rincess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edin orgh, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Henry of Battenberg and his wife, Princess Beatrice, Princess Louise and the Duchess of Fife. The Prince of Anhalt, the bridegroom, wearing a German uniform with his attendants, formed the third section of the

The Queen of England, in the most elaborate of all the carriages, surrounded by LMs Guardsmen, came next. The state carriages alone, with their gold and velvet trappings, outriders in scarlet uniforms and pickers, prancing horses, coats-of-arms and other features, were worth travelling a long distance to see. The Queen was greefed everywhere with the wildest acclamations of loyalty. The bride, accompanied by her father, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and by her brother, had already driven from Cumberland Lodge, their residence, to Windsor Castle, and as the Queen started for St. George's Chapel

In front of he altar had been erected a dais, covered with a blue velvet carpet, with the Order of the Garter and the Royal Arms handsomely interwoven in its centre. Upon this royal carpet were velvet and gold seats for the members of the Imperial and Royal families. The banners of the Knights of the Garter, all renewed for the occasion, overhung the seats of the other important guests. Besides plants and flowers, there vere no other decorations inside the chapel.

The Prince of Wales entered the chapel having upon his arm the Empress of Germany, who were a sea-greet motre antique dress. greatly to her appearance.

After Queen Victoria had been escorted by the Lord
Chamberiain to the seat of honor, close to the altar, the bridegroom, in company with his two brothers, appeared, and was led to the altar by the Lord Chambe About ten minutes later the bride arrived, supported by her father and brother. The bride's dress was of cream white satin of exquisite texture. It was bordered with orange blossoms, and the sidrt was draped with Honiton duchesse lace, which was designed by the late Prince Consort for the Queen, and which was afterward worn by the bride's mother, the Princes Christian, just twenty-five years ago; for Prince and Princess Christian will celebrate their aliver wedding at Cumberland Lodge on Wednesday. The train of his handsome dress hung gracefully from under the basque in plain, straight folds, and was of what is known as the sabot shape, its border of white buds and green giving it an effective appearance. The bodies was equally handsome. It was of white sailn, with sleeves of Honiton lace similar to that on the skirt. A girdle of orange blossoms and myrtle blossoms, hangng down in two long ends, hid the juncture of the odice and the skirt, and fell gracefully over the satin As lewelry the bride were a necklace of diamonds and pearls, the gift of her parents. The wedding veil was the one worn by the Princess Christian upon the occasion of her marriage.

The bridesmaids were Lady Emily Cadogan, Lady Edith Ward, Lady Mabel Egerton, Lady Elizabeth

Meade, Lady Esther Gore and the Honorable Beatrice Bridgeman. They were handsome white satin dresses, draped with delicate white creps de Chine and caught up with bows of frosted silver. All wore small ostitch plames in their hair, and had silver girdles around their watsts. The bridal bouquets were composed of Marechal Neil roses.

The Archbishop of Canterbury performed the mariago service, which was extremely simple, and made mly a brief exhoration. The bridegroom's responses were given in a clear, firm voice, but those of the bride were indistinct. The bride was given away by her father, Prince Christian. After the service Men-delssohn's "Wedding March" was played.

After the benediction the Queen advanced and kissed the bride. The Emperor insisted upon the same privi-lege, and then the bride was alseed by all the Princesses. The procession was then reformed, and returned to the Castle, the Queen entering it by a private door, so as to be in readiness to receive the couple. Here there was a pretty scene in the green drawing-room. All assembled to sign the register, the Queen's signature following those of the Emperor and Empress. On the route to Chiveden, the Duke of Westminster's residence, where the couple will spend the honeymoon, the ride, who wore a white bergoline travelling dress, was greeted with the usual showers of rice, satin slippers and flowers. The day was closed with a grand ban-quet at the Castle, which differed from the banquet on saturday in that the Emperor was not the chief attracon; yet his presence made itself felt, the Queen treatng him with marked courtesy.

A noteworthy incident occurred in the chapel on the arrival of the Queen. The Emperor and Empress bowed low, and the Queen did the same; but the Queen whose age gives her the privilege of a sent at every ceremony, declined to be seated before the Emperor. and a little contest of couriesy occurred. Finally the Emperor, knowing that it was painful to the Queen to stand, took her by the hand and compelled her to be seated.

In the evening the Queen drove through Windsor to Augusta, Me., July 6,-G vernor Burleigh has sen the following message of condolence to Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin at Bangor:

Hamlin at Bangor:

"Accept my profoundest sympathy in your sad bereavament. The death of Mr. Hamlin is a great loss, not only to Maine, but to the whole Nation. His memory will be ever fresh in the hearts of the American people, and the record of his brilliant career as a statesman will live in the history of our country side by side with that of the immortal Lincoln, with whom he was so intimately associated in the darkest and most trying hour of our National life."

Chicago, July 6 (Special).-The following dispatch this morning was sent to Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin by Edwin F. Getchel, president of the Illinois Society of the Bons of Maine:

of the Fons of Maine:

The Society of the Sons and Daughters of Maine of this State deeply mourns the death of your distinguished husband. The Nation as well as the State of Maine has lost one of its most eminent and faithful citizens, and the society extends to yourself and family its deepest sympthy in your great beneavement.

Frank Hamilin, son of the dead statesman, and the ecretary of the local society, left here yesterday for Bangor. Hanibal Hamilin was an honorary member of the Illinois society, and attended its first banquet of the Illinois society held eleven years ago

A SCHOLAR AND MUSICIAN, BUT DIES A MISER. San Jose, Cal., July 6 (Special),-In his squalid home where he had lived for many years the wretched life of a miser died yesterday, at the extreme age of eighty-nine years Professor Herman N. Kottinger, once a famous violinist and scholar. He was rich, owned several blocks of good rent-paying property and had large sums lent on mortgage; but he lived like a tramp, and his death was partly due to a cancer of the reast, aggravated by lack of care.

Kottinger was formerly professor in Heidelberg and was finely educated. He wrote many books on freethought, and one volume of a World's History. In his day he was one of the fingst violinists in the West and his instrument, a priceless gem of 150 years ago, was hanging at the head of his squalld bed when he died.

WILL MRS. ISELIN'S GIFT BE ACCEPTED ! A reporter of The Tribene saw Archbishop Corrigiosterday at his home, in Madison-ave., and asked his

if he had anything to say about the dispute which arisen between Father McLoughlin, the paster of Church of the Blessed Sacrament, in New-Rochelle, an his parishioners, owing to the prical's refusal to acago, unless she waived certain conditions offer was accompanied. The Archishop offer was accompanied. The Archbishop said that the of all at an early day. He refused to say any more.

It was learned by the reporter from other sources, however, that the attitude of Fatner McLaugulin toward the offer of Mrs. London.

the offer of Mrs. Iselin was regarded in ecclesiastical a well as in lay circles as being both captions and unreasonable, and that he night have mut at the beginning. Another is in black cloth, and is made would otherwise take years to collect.

THE SERVIA RETURNING.

HER CRANK-PIN BROKE AND SHE IS BEING TOWED BACK TO PORT.

PRINCE GEORGE OF GREECE WILL HAVE TO MAKE ANOTHER START-PEOPLE WHO ARE ON BOARD.

The steamship Eider, which arrived off Fire Island at 4:10 p. m. yesterday, signalled that she had passed the Cunard steamship Servia there is a handsome brown fringed passementeric. The she had passed the Cunard steamship Service high collar is edged with golden otter. This is a long early in the morning in tow of the oiltank steamship. ship Chester, the Servia having broken her highpressure crank-pin. When sighted the Servia was about 120 miles east of Sandy Hook.

· Captain Baur, of the Eider, said last night that at about 9:30 a. m. the Servia was sighted some ight miles away on the starboard bow, and as there was evidently something wrong he steered toward her. He found that she was being towed by the Dutch oiltank steamship Chester. Seeing that the Servia was not under steam, he had made preparations to take her passengers on board his vessel, but they declined to leave the Servia, and, as he could be of no assistance to the Cunarder, he came on to this port as quickly as possible to give information of the accident. Captain Baur brought word to the Cunard Company that Captain Dutton, of the Servia, wanted them to send out tugs to aid in bringing the vessel to port.

Captain Baur says that in all probability there are some crank-pins in store at the company's dock, but if not one would have to be made here or imported from England, which would of course delay the vessel for some time

The Servia left here on Saturday last at 4 a. m. having on board a large number of saloon passengers, among whom was Prince George of Greece. The Chester, which is towing the Servia, left also on Saturday last, but late in the afternoon. She is commanded by Captain Tolle, and was built in Liverpool in 1872. This is built the second time this year that she has helped disabled vessels into port. On March 2 she brought in seventy-eight men and one woman, the crew of the wrecked steamer Iowa.

Two powerful tugs were sent out last night by the Cunard Steamship Company to bring the Servia in. It is expected that she will reach her dock about noon to-day. The following is a complete list of the passengers who embarked on Saturday.
